

cdc air sussension

Beitrag von „boutrosa“ vom 22. August 2007 um 15:50

we do not have speed limits. the major problem are bad roads, mainly patched up with potholes or completely unpaved rocky roads. We use the off road capabilities on a daily basis here sometimes just to avoid traffic. Driving to the beach or the the neighboring country, we have good roads that we can drive fast on. but the capital is very congested. I live at a top of a mountain and the road repairs are basically done by us. The road is very steep and when wet you will not make it home without 3wd.

I was under the impression that the auto mode had a variable suspension that adjusted according to the road conditions.

So from the descriptions that I have given you of the roads, Is the air suspension better for me?