

Facelift Touareg 2007

Beitrag von „Franks“ vom 16. Juni 2006 um 02:25

Hier die neuesten Neuigkeiten zum Thema Facelift, frisch aus dem US- Vortex- Forum. Gepostet von Jamie, einem der Vortex- Moderatoren, wer seine Beiträge in den vergangenen Jahren verfolgt hat wird bestätigen können, dass diese Infos zu 100% zuverlässig sind.

Der englische Originaltext:

- The T-reg gets a revised front end treatment to bring it in line with the Passat/Jetta/Eos but instead of chrome has a brushed aluminum looking finish that looks much better
- new tear drop-style headlamps similar to the Eos/Concept A have been added with new detailing inside the lens that picks up accents from the brushed aluminum looking front grill
- the lower bumper has been redesigned with a more rugged look (and still retains the fog/driving lamps)
- new tinted tailamps (same shape as existing rear lights) with revised inside reflectors that are more detailed
- rear roof spoiler has been added
- roof rack rails have been redesigned a bit and are now brushed aluminum looking
- new side mirrors with more aerodynamic shape and more detail
- new seats on the interior with deeper bolsters and wider shoulder wings
- touch-screen navigation system (delayed introduction most likely) with a completely new design

Overall the changes are on the subtle side but make the Touareg look a lot meaner and more masculine in person - I really liked it. Expect it to hit the (US-)market in April of 2007.

-->Quelle<--

US-Markterscheinen April 2007 bedeutet, es wird in Deutschland ca. 4-6 Monate früher kommen.

Gruß,

Frank