

Tele Atlas has just.....

Beitrag von „Thanandon“ vom 2. Juli 2008 um 10:25

Tele Atlas has just announced that over the next five years they'll be providing Google with all of the mapping info they suck up through the satellites, along with everything they've already piled up. This means that fancy Google Maps app for BlackBerry with the newfangled transit info will have a healthy booster shot of photos and information. Tele Atlas has done a lot of good work with mobile GPS applications, and partnering with Google is solid step to doing more.

Filed under Announcements, News | Permalink | No comment | Add to Del.icio.us or Digg

<http://www.blackberrycool.com/2008/06/30/007632/>

--

This article was sent using my Viigo.

For a free download, go to <http://getviigo.com>